Alternative Careers

Mark Moss

Lieutenant Colonel, United States Army

Ph.D., Computer Science, Georgia Institute of Technology

Saturday, April 13, 2013

My Journey

- 1989

  Graduated from M.I.T. and Commissioned as a Second Lieutenant and Signal Corps Officer in the U.S. Army
- 1990 – 1991

  Platoon Leader and Company Executive Officer, 307th Signal Battalion, Camp Carroll, Korea
- 1992 – 1995

  Detachment Commander, Army Space Command, Okinawa, Japan
- 1997 – 2000 (and 2008 – 2011)

  Assistant Professor, Computer Science, U.S.M.A., West Point, New York
- 2000 – 2002

  Chief of Information Technology, Army Manpower and Reserve Affairs, Pentagon, Washington, D.C.
- 2002 – 2005

  Communications Watch Officer and Information Assurance Officer, European Command, Stuttgart, Germany
- 2011 – Present

  Cyber Warfare Instructor, U.S. Cyber Command, Fort Meade, Maryland

I've Noticed Along the Way…

- I began for the financial assistance
- I stayed for the opportunities for higher education and "dream jobs"

- Leading groups of people
- Lots of travel: continual learning and adapting
- How do you fit into "the bigger picture"

- Communicating the operational impact of technical concepts
- Understanding technical concepts as a leader and manager

- Range of personalities is welcome
- Civilians also needed and welcomed